CITY HALL ANNEX IS APPROVED BY AUTHORITIES

Voters Will Be Given Chance to Decide on Issuance of $40,000 in Bonds

Plans for the new annex to the city hall last night were approved by Glendale's official family and are now awaiting an appropriation of about $40,000 from the voters of Glendale at the coming municipal bond election.

The new building will be located just behind the present city hall. However, it will be wider and will extend from the alley to Howard street.

The architecture of this annex will conform to that of the present building. It will be two stories in height and the exterior will be of stone and brick.

The main entrance to the annex will face Broadway at the rear of the lawn to the east of the present building. There will also be an entrance on the second floor through the council chamber.

A new court room, 23 by 32 feet in size, will occupy the southeast corner of the second floor. This will overlook the present lawn on the east side of the building and will be directly over the main entrance to the annex.

The northeast side of the second floor will contain an office for the police judge, a small law library, and offices for the city attorney and assistant city attorney.

There will be a special reception room for these offices. A large drafting room will occupy the northwest section of the second floor. One section of this room will be 15 by 45 feet in size and the other section will be 15 by 45 feet in dimensions. Altogether, this department will be given 1310 square feet. There will be an office for the city engineer.

The health department will be given space on the south side of the second floor. Its main room will be 20 by 23 feet in size. This will be divided as necessary to provide for the municipal laboratory.

A small jury room, 10 by 16 feet in size, will be located across a hall from the court room.

The police station will occupy the first floor. To the right of the entrance the southeast corner of the second floor will be occupied by a small reception room. (Continued on Page 10).

J. C. Sherer Says Sell School Property

J. C. Sherer offers the following regarding the Glendale Union High school situation:

Editor The Evening News—As a citizen and taxpayer who took an active part in the campaign some months ago when the people by ballot decided to buy a new site for a high school, permit me to say: The assertion made in some quarters that "the people have decided to retain the site of the present high school buildings for other school purposes" is not in accordance with the facts of the case, regardless of the action of any mass meeting.

The campaign alluded to was over the question of location of the high school as well as of the acquisition of acreage for a new plant. Nobody spoke of "additional ground for high school purposes," but everyone looked upon it as a question of a "new site." And, although the ballot did not give any instructions to the trustees to sell the Harvard street property, there is no reasonable room for doubting that it was the expectation of the majority of the voters that the trustees would dispose of it to the best advantage and that the sum realized would go into the school fund and help to relieve the taxpayers from that much of a bond issue.

The evidence of the fact that this was generally so understood is found in the construction of comparatively cheap bungalows on the school grounds rather than invest in more costly buildings to be "scrapped."

There is only one way to ascertain the wishes of the people and that is by ballot; mass meetings are frequently not representative, being too often "packed" and programmed by one side or the other.

The last expression of the people on this subject seemed to me clearly enough to demand that the site of the present buildings be sold, but if the trustees are in doubt it is in order for them to submit it again to the people for decision in the only proper way, by ballot.

J. C. SHERER.

Additional Carrier at Postoffice Here

The carrier force of the local postoffice has been increased by the addition of another city carrier, according to D. Ripley Jackson, postmaster. This makes four new men who have been added to the force since Capt. Jackson was authorized to augment the staff sufficiently to maintain proper service.

Newton L. Clark, former carrier at Bakersfield, has been transferred from that city to the Glendale postoffice.

This picture shows representatives of four generations, whose presence featured the golden wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. S. Houdyshel Saturday, July 29, at their home at 308 North Orange street. Seated in the center of the group is Mrs. S. Houdyshel, formerly Miss Priscilla Cowger, the bride of 1872.

Standing back of her is her daughter and grand-daughter, Mrs. Rella Crowley of Susanville, and Mrs. Priscilla Nielsen of Sacramento, while by her side stands her great-granddaughter, little Miss Lois Nielsen, sixteen months old of Sacramento.

Great-grandmother is a native of Iowa, her daughter of Iowa also, her grand-daughter of Kansas, while the great-granddaughter is a native daughter of California.

An account of the golden wedding affair at the Houdyshel home was given in The Glendale Evening News, Saturday, July 29, 1922.

Mr. and Mrs. Houdyshel were married July 29, 1872, in Competition, Iowa. Mr. Houdyshel is a Civil War veteran, having served with the 142nd Indiana volunteers. They have four sons and three daughters and five of them took part in the family gathering July 29, planned by Misses Sadie and Sibyl Houdyshel, the two daughters living at home.

In recognition of the anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Houdyshel received many congratulatory messages and gifts in gold and silver from relatives and friends.

IMPROVEMENT OF SERVICE SOUGHT

North Glendale Schedule to Be Changed, Is Promise
Of P. E. Official

A new schedule for cars from and to North Glendale may be made, according to the following letter from A. O. Smith, general passenger agent of the Pacific Electric, received yesterday by City Manager W. H. Reeves:

"Referring to your letter of July 27, in the matter of the complaint received by you concerning trains coming from North Glendale failing to make connections at Broadway and Brand boulevard for points on Broadway.

"This matter has been investigated and we find it to be a fact that direct connections are occasionally not made.

"Under the present schedule, this schedule is at times a difficult matter owing to the restrictions of the city against holding cars at Broadway and Brand boulevard for any length of time.

"A complete re-issue of our timetable will, therefore, be necessary to take care of the situation which we will arrange as soon as possible.

"I am obliged to you for calling this matter to my attention."

Council Decides In Favor of Improvement Plan on San Fernando Road

Proceedings for the installation of ornamental lights on San Fernando boulevard between Los Feliz Road and Pacific avenue will continue as originally planned according to a decision reached last night by the city council.

Application for re-opening the proposition was attributed by members of the city council to a misunderstanding.

L. H. Wilson of 1024 South San Fernando Road presented a petition requesting that proceedings be continued on San Fernando boulevard as specified and had only signed the protesting petition because they had been misinformed that the contract had been let without competitive bidding.

J. B. Whitaker of 407 West Harvard street, who owns 450 feet on South San Fernando Road, said that the quality of the ornamental lighting standards seemed somewhat better and more expensive than value of the frontage warranted. He characterized some of the holdings as "farm property."

Building Projects

L. H. Wilson, who said that he knew of $100,000 worth of building to be done on San Fernando boulevard as soon as the lighting standards are installed, took issue with this point and reminded Mr. Whitaker that he was only asking $60 a front foot for his property which made it rather expensive for farm purposes.

The advisability of substituting a one-light iron standard was suggested by Mr. Whitaker.

C. J. Griffin of 1035 South San Fernando Road in a previous speech had remarked that, if no better lights should be planned than those now in the business district of Southern Glendale, he would present a real protest.

Mayor Spencer Robinson congratulated the residents of San Fernando Road for desiring to have nothing but the very best and said that the influence of the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association had been felt by other improvement associations already.

Councilman C. E. Kimlin commented upon the fact that the installation of ornamental lights on San Fernando Road would just about double the value of the frontage.

Names on Petition
The petition presented by L. H. Wilson follows:

"We, the undersigned owners of the San Fernando boulevard frontage stated opposite our respective names hereby petition your honorable body as follows:

MRS. HENRY BRAUN DESCRIBES HIKE IN SIERRAS

Three Hundred Persons In Party; Highest Mountain
Scaled by Many

An account of a wonderful vacation trip into the high Sierras is being given by Mrs. Henry Braun of South Glendale avenue, who returned Sunday from a four weeks' hiking trip with the Sierra club. This was Mrs. Braun's second trip with the club and she says the outing was ideal.

There were 300 hikers in the party and they took with them twelve packmen, a chef, an assistant chef, five Chinese boys and 100 mules and twenty-five horses to pack supplies and food.

The real feature of the trip, which covered over 150 miles in four weeks, was the ascent of Mt. Whitney, the highest mountain in the United States. It was Mrs. Braun's fortune to be among the 200 hikers who reached the top, and she says the experience of the climb and view from the summit is beyond description.

Club Mt. Whitney

Leaving the Giant forest in the Sequoia National park, the club traveled east to Mt. Whitney, pitching camp at Crabtree's Meadow. From there the ascent of Mt. Whitney was made. Mt. Whitney is 14,502 feet high. However, the hikers made the climb from an elevation of 10,000 feet. The trip up was made in one day, the hikers starting at 5 o'clock in the morning and reaching the top in from four to seven hours. From the top they looked out over vast stretches of country, commanding wonderful views of the King's river country, the Owen's valley, Death valley and the Southern California mountains.

After the climb they broke camp and traveled over the Kings-Kern divide, on over Junction pass, at an elevation of 14,000 feet, and then over the famous John Muir trail above the timber line. They then came down to Center basin and along the entire length of Budd's creek to King's river and back to the Giant forest.

See Aged Trees

Mrs. Braun says the Giant forest was one of the most interesting parts of the trip. There they saw many of the old Sequoia gigantea, the oldest of which is General Sherman, estimated to be 3,500 years old. The hikers measured the trunk of this famous tree and found it took twenty-three persons with arms outstretched and hands clasped to encircle the trunk.

"There is no more delightful vacation outing than a trip with the Sierra club," said Mrs. Braun. "It is an invigorating and comfortable trip and there are very few who return home worn out. The only difficulty I find is of having to live indoors after living outside and breathing the wonderful mountain air. Next summer the club is planning a trip in the country north of the Yosemite and I am looking forward to being a member of the group to make the trip."

Enjoy Auto Trip on Malibu Canyon Road

A group of Glendale people enjoyed a week-end motor trip over the new Malibu canyon road, leaving Glendale late Saturday night and returning home Sunday evening. There were two machines making the trip and the party included Mrs. Louise Purdell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Rand, Mr. and Mrs. Myrtle Pollock and son Allan, Ray Moon of Glendale, and Mrs. M. Hutchins of Los Angeles.

From Glendale they drove to Santa Monica canyon, where they were delayed until 1 o'clock Sunday morning waiting for the canyon control.

They report that work on the new road in Malibu canyon is progressing and that when completed the road will be fifty feet wide. The road is surrounded by wonderful scenery and the pleasure seekers find many attractive spots to camp.

After passing the Rindge estate the Glendale party continued on about eight miles and then turned to the right instead of to the left and found themselves on some strange roads, very narrow and with stiff grades. Steep were some of the grades that it was necessary to go down on compression with both brakes locked. Continuing on into this country they passed through several gates and stopped for lunch near the Potrero Rancho of 12,000 acres. It seems that travelers are not allowed to enter the Rancho territory and the Glendale People drove in with the consent of a gatekeeper, who had been employed Saturday.

In telling of their trip the Glendaleans say the trip and scenery were beautiful, but that they advise all their friends not to tempt the same trip through the Malibu canyon to be sure to the left beyond the Rindge estate and drive along the ocean instead of undertaking the road leading to the Potrero Rancho.

WIFE 'PREPARED FOR SALVATION,' HE KILLS HER

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 8.—"I killed my wife because she was prepared for salvation. We both thought it was time to do it; that if she continued to live she would do something wrong and be lost. She had later repented, and matter over, and he had suggested that if she died while repentant she would be saved. He said his wife had agreed to die by his hand.

ATTEMPT TO CRUSH K. K. K. AT TRIAL IS CHARGED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—Charges that the prosecution of thirty-seven men indicted on charges of attempted murder and of kidnapping in connection with the Ingelwood raid of April 22 is actually an attempt to crush the Ku Klux Klan, and that the guilt or innocence of the thirty-seven is but of incidental interest will be the contention of the defense when the trial gets well under way, it was reported at the resumption of the work of obtaining a jury. The defense, it was reliably reported, will attempt to show that although some 200 persons were said to have been implicated in the fatal raid, the only ones against whom indictments were returned, or almost the only ones, were knights of the Ku Klux Klan. This, it will be contended, shows that, denials to the contrary notwithstanding, the prosecution is actually attempting to put the "invisible empire" on trial.

BUSINESS MEN TO HEAR PLANS FOR PUBLIC PICNIC

Details of Community Outing to Be Told at Dinner on Wednesday Night

Winners in the recent membership campaign of the Merchants' Credit association were invited at the meeting of that organization yesterday noon to a dinner Wednesday night to be given by the losers under the leadership of Walter P. Potter. The dinner will be given in the Broadway Inn at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

When the membership campaign was started some time ago, it was agreed that the losing side should give a dinner for the winners. H. M. Butts and W. P. Potter were chosen captains and the members of the association picked alternately for each team. Mr. Butts' side secured the largest number of new members, so that Mr. Potter's team is to furnish the meal.

At the dinner the members of the association will hear the complete data with regard to the community picnic which is to be held in the new city park on Wednesday, August 16. A musical program will also be furnished, with Ole Anderson in charge. Mayor Spencer Robinson has been invited to lend his talents to the occasion, and Mr. Potter expects that the Credit Association will turn out in force.

General Discussion

At the meeting of the association yesterday noon, J. M. Rhoades, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was called upon to tell of his experiences on the Madalynne Obenchain jury. Mr. Rhoades stated that there had been enough discussion of the jury, but when more time was available he would be glad to detail some of the corrections which might be made in the methods employed in handling such cases.

The community picnic, which is being sponsored by the association, together with the city officials and other organizations, was discussed. Owen C. Emery, president of the association, stated that there had been some misunderstanding of the arrangements for the division of money from the concessions. After some discussion a motion was carried that the city be asked to allow the association half the net profits. (Continued on Page 10).

Last Call! Suggest Name for New Park

The fateful hour in the early history of Glendale's municipal park approaches, according to the ultimatum issued this morning by the city committee of the Chamber of Commerce announcing that no suggestions for the park name will be received after Wednesday noon, August 9, and that the city committee will meet Wednesday evening to discuss the suggestions in hand and recommend a list of six to the choice of the city council.

Approximately 150 suggestions have been received by The Evening News and the city committee. The list compiled, of course, contains duplications. However, the hearty response and enthusiasm of Glendale residents has been most gratifying.

The most recent installment of suggestions includes: Ramona Park, Oakdale Park, Oak Park, Live Oak Park, Princeton Park, Windsor Park, Glendale Park, Glendugo Park, Community Park, Forest Park, Sunnyside Park, Golden Meadow Park, Highland Park, Grandview Park, Summerville Park, Pacific Park, Evergreen Park, Glenoaks Park and Verdugo Park.

The eleventh hour in naming the park is near and Glendale people are awaiting with interest the list of six suggestions recommended to the city council by the city committee, but more than that, they are anxiously awaiting the council's choice of the park's new name.

BUILDING BUSILY 'TOO BEAUTIFUL' ALL THE WHILE CAFE IS CLOSED

Summer Shows No Decided Slump In Eagle Rock's Pace of Progress

Building in Eagle Rock is progressing at a steady gait, as shown by reports at the Eagle Rock city hall. Although no phenomenal number of building permits has been issued during the past few days, a certain encouraging average is being maintained.

Predictions have it that no great increase in building is to be expected for a few weeks yet. The "vacation months," July and August, are usually less active, just as business is less brisk during that time. About the first of September, however, it is stated that both business and building will increase, due to the return of most of those on vacations.

Among the recent permits taken out at the Eagle Rock city hall is one for the erection of a five room house to be built at 222 Acacia street. The work is to be done by the General Engineering Company for A. L. Millard, who lives at the corner of Griffin avenue and Avenue 31, Los Angeles. The estimated cost of the structure is about $3500.

F. W. Miller of 256 North Peyton avenue is to build two four room residences at 258 and 260 North Peyton avenue, for a court. The cost of the project will be about $2000.

A seven room residence, to cost approximately $4000 is to be erected at 119 South Highland avenue. Mrs. George Johnson of 156 South Albany street, Huntington Park, is to be the owner of the new structure.

A garage is to be added to the Ernest F. Munyon property at 133 South Hartwick avenue, at an approximate cost of $100.

Furnishings of Mon Chateau In Danger When General Public Starts Dining

"Mon Chateau," what was pronounced one of the most unique and exclusive places to dine in southern California, has closed its doors to the public as a cafe. Opening last Saturday evening, amid a blaze of splendor, the announcement that it is now closed will come as a distinct surprise to the many friends of the owners, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jones of 418 South Douglas avenue, Eagle Rock.

Mr. Jones, when interviewed last evening, stated that the decision to close "Mon Chateau" was reached after considerable deliberation by Mrs. Jones and himself.

"When one considers that we have spent thousands of dollars in fitting up the place, and have simply worked ourselves almost sick in the effort, and then to throw it up just a few days after the formal opening—why this naturally will cause people to question our business ability, and cause comment as to why we did not give it a fair chance," he said.

"It is a hard thing to explain. Our patronage was all that could be wished for. In fact, we could not fill half the reservations. Every guest simply raved over the surroundings here, and from a financial standpoint it would have been a huge success, but there are certain features to conducting a cafe, that neither my wife nor myself had considered, and the past few days convinced us that we did not choose to continue to operate 'Mon Chateau' as a public cafe."

When one takes into consideration the beautiful furnishings, the priceless objects of art, and the most decided refinement of "Mon Chateau," it perhaps explains why Mr. and Mrs. Jones prefer to keep it as their own private home, regardless of the fact that it might have been a big financial success as a place for the public to dine and dance.

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

Start Serial Story Now! News Has Many Features Prosperity Proved Fact Day of Strike Sufficient

By Gil A. Cowan

Are you reading "The Riddle of the Frozen Flame," the new serial which started last night in The News.

It is a real mystery that has been very popular in book form and it is with real pleasure that this paper offers it as an initial serial.

Summer is the ideal time for folks to read interesting fiction and in a Hamilton Cleek detective yarn you have something comparable only to Sherlock Holmes. If you did not get the first chapter, find last night's News and start the story today. It is too good to miss if you like fascinating reading.

The News now carries features—pages of them—which are comparable to those published in any newspaper.

For instance, the International News Service leased wire is second to none in the country for speed, accuracy and feature writers.

Then the George Mathew Adams syndicate, the McClure syndicate, the U. S. Sports service, the U. S. Press Association, the New York Sun-Herald, Copic service and others contribute to the genuine quality of The News which first and foremost is a home paper.

The local field is well covered by ten or more able writers. You appreciate this capable staff and the paper in general, we are sure.

Here is something in the telegraph which should make Glendale people smile, as well as those elsewhere in these United States of ours:

Postal receipts, long heralded as an accurate business barometer indicate that prosperity has actually returned," said an announcement by the postoffice department at Washington, making public the figures for the month of July.

In fifty large selected cities, it was stated, an increase of 1.62 per cent took place during July over the figures for the same month of last year.

It is nice to read of the battle held in Joliet yesterday. You would think Illinois was Ireland.

Yes, you might suspect it was Russia.

At all events you will continue to think some more if this strike business keeps up.

The federal government should be empowered to end a strike on twenty-four hours' notice.

One day is long enough for any shop to be idle in this country. There is always something doing out in Verdugo Woodlands, it seems. If there is anything better W. L. Twining likes to do than feed people, we haven't found it out.

You see he is the general manager of the F. P. Newport company and they haul everybody they get a hold of out to their subdivision and there they show them some sight—and sites.

This evening, when the Woodlands are most beautiful, the Glendale Realty board, Chamber of Commerce secretaries, City Council and a few others are going to be the honored guests at a barbecue.

The California pavilion will be the scene of the feast and for those who miss it, they may read of the evening in tomorrow evening's News.

Poverty is no disgrace, but that's about the best that can be said of it.

SOPHIE C. BEVIS DIES FOLLOWING LONG ILLNESS

Wife of Henry H. Bevis and Well-Known for Her Literary Ability

Sophie C. Bevis, wife of Henry H. Bevis, passed away August 7, 1922, at 7 p. m., at their residence, 470 Riverdale drive, Glendale. She was born July 17, 1848, in Zanesville, Ohio, the daughter of Theodore and Keziah Hazlett.

Thirty-four years ago she was married to Henry H. Bevis, at Cincinnati, Ohio, where they lived for a number of years, later residing in Boston five years and in New York for the past twenty years.

Mrs. Bevis had been in ill health for fifteen or more years. Two years ago they came to Glendale, hoping that the California climate would lengthen her life. She was taken to her bed four months ago, and grew weaker day by day.

Besides her husband she leaves to mourn her loss two children by a former marriage, Louis C. Hazlett of Chicago, and Mrs. Frank Keep of New York.

The body will be cremated in compliance with her expressed wish and the ashes placed in the family plot in Spring Grove Cemetery, Cincinnati, the funeral services in charge of L. G. Severn Company, will be held tomorrow, Wednesday, August 9, 1922, in the Little Church of the Flowers.

Mrs. Bevis, who was known for her literary ability, wrote the following:

Sometime It Will Come

By MRS. S. C. HAZLETT-BEVIS

Sometime the day will come, my dearest, When you or I no longer wait at even.

For the coming form of one who is the nearest Each to the other, on this earth or heaven.

A day will dawn when one of us stand lonely, Thinking of the past and all it gave, And if the love we bore each other, Went beyond a lowly, grass-grown grave.

If, when the gates swung wide for some to enter, You would stand waiting on the other side, For me, or I should linger—loving, Waiting at the golden gate for thee.

Ah, "sometime it will come"—perhaps at twilight, Sadder still at lonely midnight hour, When we are thus, stricken by the chilling light, That comes to every human floor.

My tears fall now at even the thought of parting, Then what would follow when I see you deep within my heart for thee is dawning, So I would manifest in greater name.

Then, darling, as we know an hour is coming, Or a day—it may be many years—When we are all nature summing, Say "good-bye, love," low, with falling tears.

Let us prove by every passing hour of living, That purest love and trust are best, and yet, When mistakes come, be even so, That death will bring no shadow of regret.

DAVID BUTLER IN CLEVER COMEDY AT GLENDALE

Delightful Story Is Offered Tonight; Picture Is Really Something Different

"According to Hoyle," David Butler's latest starring vehicle, which comes to the Glendale Theatre today is a stimulating philosophical pill, delightfully sugar-coated with comedy. The story, written by Clyde Westover and Lotie Horner, concerns a youth, who had lost all ambition in life. While tramping the country as a hobo he finds by the roadside a sheet from a correspondence school detailing the rules for success. His interest in life is reawakened by the face of a pretty girl, and he sets out to apply these rules, with laughable, but effective, results. The picture is so decidedly different it will be a tonic to movie lovers who have commenced to feel ennui. Mr. Butler is supported by Helen Ferguson, Phil Ford, Fred J. Butler, Harry Todd, Buddy Ross, Hal Wilson and Sam Allen.

Movies May Make Grand Open Films

CHICAGO—Grand opera in motion pictures is the next great attempt to be made to raise the standard of picture production, it was announced today by J. Hancock Harlow, president of the Chicago Standard Cinemas.

Harlow, who assisted George Loane Tucker in the direction of the "Miracle Man," will personally supervise the production of "Parsifal," considered by many as Richard Wagner's most stupendous composition.

The method to be followed by Harlow will be to direct each movement of the actors so as to harmonize with the accompanying music. In other words, each chord of the opera will fit in exactly with each motion of the actors, thus harmoniously visualizing the opera.

The picture, upon which work already has been begun will take about four hours in the showing. The showing of each picture in the larger cities will be accompanied by the music from "Parsifal," played by a picked orchestra, Harlow said. In the smaller cities the music will be played on player pianos from records specially prepared for the picture.

"This will be the largest picture ever made," said Harlow, "and will undoubtedly be of immeasurable value from an educational view alone. In the past grand opera has been open to only a few even in the large cities, but with the advent of this new attempt the greatest music in the world will be placed at the disposal of the humblest person anywhere."

"If this picture is successful it will be followed by other great operas," he added. Harlow estimated that it will take a year to produce "Parsifal."

Thrilling Story Being Shown On Screen; Filled With Romance, Adventure

Those of the patrons—and that probably includes all—who saw "Man—Woman—Marriage," produced by Allen Holubar and starring Dorothy Phillips, will be delighted to hear that the T. D. & L. Theatre will present today another production in which this talented pair figures.

The picture is "Hurricane's Gal," and it is one which Manager Allan says he can recommend unreservedly. It is a wholesome story of romance and adventure, most of the action taking place at sea, with Miss Phillips in the role of the captain of a smuggling ship, and just as stern and harsh with the crew as was her father, from whom she inherited the ship.

"Hurricane's Gal" is an absorbingly interesting and so loaded with a rapid succession of pulse quickening situations that it will appeal to all types of motion picture fans, and especially those who love stories of the great outdoors stories that are all action, plausible and logical. The sea scenes, with hydroplanes, destroyers and schooners in the action, will thrill you to the core.

NEW FICTION FOR EAGLE ROCKANS AT LIBRARY

Mrs. Blanche Gardiner Tells of Books Received and Many Summer Calls

About a dozen new books, the best of the latest novels, have been purchased and will be available at the Eagle Rock public library within a few days, according to Mrs. Blanche A. Gardiner, local librarian.

The new books, most of which have been off the presses only a few days, include the "Head of the House of Coombs" and its sequel, "Robin," both by Frances Hodgson Burnett. There are also the latest books of James Oliver Curwood, Margaret Deland, Mary Roberts Rinehart and others of the most prominent fiction writers of the day.

"We aim to buy about a dozen every month, in addition to our regular book order," says Mrs. Gardiner. "All of the better novels for which there is a demand we try to get for the reading public as soon as they have been issued. Unless we buy as soon as they are out, we sometimes are unable to get them."

Popularity Fickle It is sometimes rather hard to predict which books will become popular and which will not be called for. Sometimes a book which is hardly known when it is put on the market is taken up and read widely and again a new story which is expected to have a phenomenal sale is a failure. However, we try to get whatever appeals to the reading public, and which is good literature."

Among the less widely known books which have lately become popular among readers who patronize the Eagle Rock library is "Johnstone of the Border" by Harold Bindloss. Several of Sewell Ford's productions such as "Shorty McCabe's Odd Numbers" and "Torchy and Vee" have also met with considerable interest.

A late arrival at the library is the last of the three "prairie" stories by Arthur Stringer which have met with much success. The first two, "The Prairie Wife" and "The Prairie Mother" gained considerable fame in a short time, and the third and last, "The Prairie Child," seems destined, if anything, to be even more successful, it is stated.

Growth Is Steady The steady growth of the local library and the large extent of its patronage by the Eagle Rock people is a record exceeded by few libraries of this class in the state, according to Mrs. Gardiner, who is kept busy issuing and receiving books, and directing the patrons. She is a well informed librarian, advising as to the character and worth of various books as readers make inquiries, and locating almost any information for which one asks.

To keep up with the addition of books more shelf space has become necessary, and an extra row of shelving has been put all around the wall in both of the reading rooms. The added space will accommodate about 1,000 more books, says Mrs. Gardiner, but at the rate the institution is growing now, this increase will not be sufficient for many months.

PRaises Granite FOUND IN STATE

C. H. Ambrosch Tells About Monument Workers Using California Product

California has as good granite as can be found anywhere in the United States.

This statement was made yesterday at 1727 South Brand boulevard by C. H. Ambrosch, proprietor of the Glendale Monument Works, who spent several days last week attending the annual convention of the Memorial Art Dealers' association of California.

California granite was the principal topic of discussion. The delegates, who represented almost every firm in the state dealing in monuments, agreed that the granite to be found in California is surpassed by none. They denounced the foolishness of sending to Wisconsin and the New England states for granite which is no better than that which can be hewn out of nearby mountains. "We have more granite in this state than there is in any other state in the union," remarked Mr. Ambrosch. "It is cheaper, too. Sometimes you have to pay as much as $4 a hundred pounds for freight. In some cases the freight costs more than the stone. Here you can get granite from any part of the state for 75 cents a hundred."

RABBIT HUNTERS HUNT FOR SHADE

Three Glendale Men Invade Elizabeth Lake District; Almost Burn Up

When is a rabbit a weish "rabbit"? Sportsmen, or rather "bunny hunters" of Southern Glendale say that it is when the leape cuncull are carried through Palmdale with the mercury in the thermometer sizzling around 2000 in the shade—more or less—and all the palms moultin around with their tongues hanging out.

J. B. Murphy of 1529 1/2 South San Fernando road Saturday afternoon took W. M. Darden of 204 East Cypress street and George M. Stull of 1424 South San Fernando road in his Oldsmobile out to Elizabeth Lake.

Sunday they started out to pot a mess of rabbits although Mr. Murphy considered that they were taking a mean advantage of the beasts because it was too hot for them to run. They got thirteen despite the fact that every time they started to hike across a meadow the soles of their shoes started to blister.

At noon they stopped at Twin Oaks for lunch. In the afternoon they saw a rattlesnake in Mint Canyon which Mr. Murphy says was as large around as his wrist—however, it was dead.

Modern Farms Now Have Conveniences

CHICAGO. — The American farm is adding to its agricultural machinery other means of increasing efficiency and convenience. In eight states more than half the farms have automobiles, 75 per cent having them in Nebraska and 73 per cent in Iowa. The states from Missouri and Kansas to the northern border, on their 1,096,000 farms, have 631,000 automobiles.

Tractors seem to be more popular with farmers than motor trucks. Two hundred and twenty-nine thousand farms have tractors and 139,000 possess trucks. Trucks are apparently most popular in connection with farms marketing vegetables and fruit, for 19 per cent of the New Jersey farms have them. Tractors are proportionately most numerous in South Dakota, where they are on 16 per cent of the farms. The percentage is almost as large in North Dakota, and is over 10 per cent in Montana and California as well.

The farmer's wife is getting some advantages. On 644,000 farms—that means 10 per cent—water has been piped into the house, and on 452,000 there is gas or electric light.

The telephone is the most universal of modern facilities used on the farms. Almost 40 per cent of all farms now have telephones, and in Iowa the figure runs up to 86 per cent in the states beginning with Missouri and Kansas, and extending northward, where automobiles are most numerous, 70 per cent of the farms are equipped with telephones.

Peasants Mourn As Bandit Is Captured

MILAN.—There is sorrowing among the peasants of Catalonia, for Turi Rapisarda, a classical Sicilian bandit, has been captured.

Turi fought a lone duel with carabinieri at the age of nineteen, but he has established a law of vengeance upon the unjust. Turi has defended the peasants against robbers, he has pacified families in feud, has forced men to marry women whom they have abandoned and has recovered stolen property for its rightful owners.

Turi was captured at a peasant dance. Thousands of peasants have petitioned the king for his release.

G. H. McLean, Proprietor of Triangle Garage, Get 'Em Coming, Going

G. H. McLean, proprietor of the Triangle Garage at 1526 South San Fernando Road, yesterday drove a Ford sedan over to El Monte and drove an El Car back again.

The reason? He sold one and brought one back to overhaul. He took the new arrival immediately to a local firm to be repainted. Mr. McLean thinks he is to be congratulated both for bringing El Monte money to Glendale and for bringing work from El Monte to Glendale.

Lincoln's Name Is Defended by Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Charges made by Miss Mildred Rutherford, of Athens, Georgia, against Abraham Lincoln as the instigator of the Civil war, are denied by Henry B. Rankin, eighty-five, Lincoln's biographer, who studied in the great emancipator's law office here.

"No man that ever lived was more lied about as to his personal manners and purposes of life than Lincoln," the historian said in discounting the charges. "During the war he went with Seward and met the Confederate cabinet and challenged them to write whatever conditions of peace they desired, but nothing came of it."

Rankin professed ignorance of the reasons underlying the renewal of the charge at this time. "However," he said, "it will not damage his memory, because it is a lie."

Rankin is the author of "Personal Recollections of Lincoln." For years he has devoted his time to compiling incidents from the life of Lincoln, seldom stirring from a couch where he is confined by ill health.

Actor Who Plays In Judas Role Ridiculed

LONDON.—During a visit he paid to Oberammergau several years ago, the late Andrew D. White, the American diplomat, made the acquaintance of the Judas, whom he describes as by far the best actor in the whole performance.

Mr. White remarked to him that he ought to have a double salary, as the Judas had in the miracle plays of the Middle Ages, when this was thought due to him as compensation for the injury done to his character by his taking that part. At this the Oberammergau Judas smiled pleasantly and replied:

"No; I am content to share equally with the others. But the same feeling toward the Judas still exists."

He then told Mr. White the following story. A few weeks before, while he was working at his carving bench, the door of his workshop opened and a peasant woman from the mountains came in, stood still, gazed at him intently. On his asking her what she wanted, she said:

"I saw you in the play yesterday. I wished to look at you again. You look so like my husband. He is dead. He, too, was a very bad man!"

The Riddle of the Frozen Flame

CHAPTER II

The Frozen Flames

Merriton Towers had been called the loneliest spot in England by many of the tourists who chanced to visit the Fen district, and it was no misnomer. Nigel, having seen it some thirteen years before, found that his memory had dimmed the true vision of the place considerably; that where he had built romance, romance was not. Where he had softened harsh outlines, and peopled dark corridors with his own fancies, those same outlines had taken on a grimness that he could hardly believe possible, and the long dark corridors of his mind's vision were longer and darker and lonelier than he had ever imagined any spot could be.

It was a handsome place, no doubt, in its gaunt, gray, prison-like way. And, too, it had a moat and a miniature portcullis that rather tickled his boyish fancy. The furnishings, however, had an appalling grimness that took the very heart out of one. Chairs which seemed to have grown in their places for centuries crowded the corners of the hallways and stairs like gigantic nightmares of their original prototypes. Monstrous curtains of red brocade, grown mottled with the years, seemed to hang from every window and door crowding out the light and air. The carpets were thick and dark and had lost all sign of pattern in the dull gloom of the centuries.

It was, in fact, a house that would create ghosts. The atmosphere was alive with that strange sensation of disembodied spirits which some very old houses seem to possess. Narrow, slit-like windows in perfect keeping with the architecture and the needs of the period in which it was built—if not with modern ideas of hygiene and health—kept the rooms dark and musty. When Nigel first entered the place through the great front door thrown open by the solemn-faced butler, who he learned had been kept on from his uncle's time, he felt as though he were entering his own tomb. When the door shut he shuddered as the light and sunshine vanished.

The first night he hardly slept a wink. His bed was a huge four-poster, girly about with plush hangings like over-ripe plums that shut him in as though he were in some monstrous Victorian trinket box. A post creaked at every turn he made in its downy softness, and being used to the light, camp-like furniture of an Indian bungalow he got up, took an elderdown with him, and spent the rest of the hours upon a sofa drawn up beside an open window.

"That people could live in such places," he told himself over and over again. "No wonder their poor old souls disappeared! Any self-respecting Christian would. There'll be some slight alterations made in Merriton Towers before I'm many days older, you can bet your life on that. Old great-grandmother four-poster takes her conge tomorrow morning. If I must live here I'll sleep anyhow."

He settled himself back against the hard, horsehair sofa, and pulled up the blind. The room was instantly filled with gray and lavender shadows, while without the Fens stretched out in unbroken lines as though all the rest of the world were made up of nothing else. Lonely? Merriton had known the loneliness of Indian nights, far away from any signs of civilization. The loneliness of the jungle when the air was so still that the least sound was like the dropping of a bomb; the strange mystical loneliness which comes to the only white man in a town of natives. But all these were as nothing as compared to this. He could imagine a chap committing suicide living in such a house. Sir Joseph Merriton had disappeared five years before—and no wonder.

Merriton lay with his eyes upon the window smoking a cigarette, and surveyed the outlook before him with despairing eyes. What a future for a chap in his early thirties to face! Not a sign of habitation anywhere, not a vestige of it, save at the far edge of the Fens where a clump of trees and thick shrubs told him that behind lay Withersby Hall. This, intuition told him, was the home of Antoinette Brellier, the girl of the train, of the wreck, and now of his dreams. Then his thoughts turned to her. Gad! to bring a frail, delicate little butterfly to a place like this was like trying to imprison a ray of sunshine in a leaden box.

His eyes, riveted upon where the clump of trees stood against the semi-darkness of the approaching dawn, saw of a sudden a light prick out like a tiny flame, low down upon the very edge of the Fens. One light, two, three, and then a very host of them flashed out, as though some unseen hand had torn the heavens down and strewn their jewels broadcast over the marshes. Instinctively he got to his feet. What on earth? But even as his lips formed the unspoken exclamation came yet another light to join the others dancing and twinkling and flickering out there across the gloomy marshlands.

What the dickens was it, anyhow? A sort of unearthly fireworks display, or some new explosive experiment? The dancing flames got into his eyes like bits of lighted thistle-down blown here, there, and everywhere.

Merriton got to his feet and threw open another window bottom with a good deal of effort, for the sashes were old and stiff. Then, clad only in his silk pyjamas, and with the cigarette charring itself to a tiny column of gray ash in one hand, he leaned far out over the sill and watched those twinkling, dancing, maddening little star-flames, with the eyes of amazed astonishment.

In a moment sleep had gone from his eyelids and he felt thoroughly awake. Dashed if he wouldn't throw on a few clothes and investigate. The thing was so strange, so incredible! He knew, well enough, from Borkins's (the venerable butler's) description earlier in the evening, that that part of the marshes was uninhabited. Too low for stars, the things were, for they hung on the edges of the marsh grass like tiny lanterns swung there by fairy hands. In such a house, in such a room, with the shadow of that old four-poster winding its long fingers over him, Merriton began to perspire. It was so devilish uncanny! He was a brave enough man in human matters, but somehow these flames out there in the uninhabited stretch of the marshes were surely caused by no human agency. Go and investigate he would, this very minute! He drew in his head and brought the window down with a bang that went sounding through the gaunt, deserted old house.

Hastily he began to dress, and even as he struggled into a pair of tweed trousers came the sound of a soft knock upon his door, and he whipped round as though he had been shot, his nerves all a-jingle from the very atmosphere of the place.

"And who the devil are you?" he snapped out in an angry voice, all the more angry since he was conscious of a slight trembling of the knees. The door swung open a trifle and the pale face of Borkins appeared around it. His eyes were wide with fright, his mouth hung open.

"Sir Nigel, sir, I heard a dreadful noise—like a pistol shot it was, comin' from this room! Anythink the matter, sir?"

"Nothing, you ass!" broke out Merriton, fretfully, as the butler began to show other parts of his anatomy around the corner of the door. "Come in, or go out, which ever you please. But for the Lord's sake, do one or the other! There's a beastly draught. The noise you heard was that window which possibly hasn't been open for a century or two, groaning in pain at being forced into action again! Can't sleep in this beastly room—haven't closed my eyes yet—and when I did get out of that Victorian atrocity over there and take the sofa by the window, why, the first thing I saw were those flames flickering out across the horizon like signal-fires or something! I've been watching them for the past twenty minutes and they've got on my nerves. I'm going out to investigate."

Borkins gave a little exclamation of alarm and put one trembling hand over his face. Merriton suddenly registered the fact as being a symptom of the state of nerves which Merriton Towers was likely to reduce one. Then Borkins shuffled across the room and laid a timid hand upon Merriton's arm.

"For Gawd's sake sir—don't!" he murmured in a shaken voice. "Those lights, sir—if you knew the story! If you values your life at any price at all don't go out, sir, and investigate them. Don't! You're a dead man in the morning if you do."

"What's that?" Merriton swung round and looked into the weak, rather watery, blue eyes of his butler. "What the devil do you mean, Borkins, talkin' a lot of rot? What are those flames, anyhow? And why haven't heaven's name shouldn't I go out and investigate 'em if I want to? Who's to stop me?"

"I, your lordship—if I ever 'em any influence with 'uman nature!" returned Borkins, vehemently. "The story's common knowledge, Sir Nigel, sir. Them there flames is supernatural. Frozen flames the villagers calls 'em, because they don't seem to give out no 'eat. That part of the Fens is uninhabited and there isn't a soul in the whole village as would venture anywhere near it after dark."

"Why?"

"Because they never comes back, that's why, sir!" said Borkins. "Tisn't any old wives' tale neither. There's been cases by the score. Only a matter of six months ago one of the boys from the mill, who was somewhat the worse for liquor, said he was again ter see who it was made them flames light up by themselves, and—he never came back. And that same night another flame was added to the number!"

"Whew! Bit of a tall story that, Borkins!" Nevertheless a cold chill crept over Merriton's bones and he gave a forced, mirthless laugh.

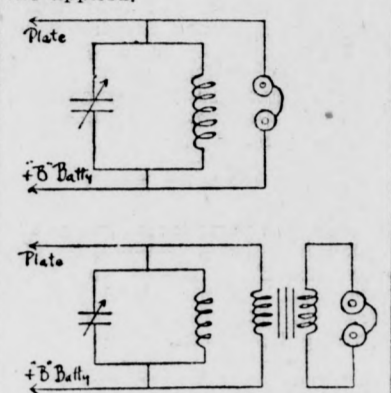

"As true as the gospel, Sir Nigel!" said Borkins, solemnly. "That's what always 'appens. Every time any one ventures that way—well, they're a-soundin' their own death-knell, so to speak, and you kin see the new light appear. But there's never no trace

THE TONE TRAP

The tone trap is a valuable aid to reducing the interference encountered from sending stations working on wave lengths somewhat different from that to be received. Its functioning is based upon the principle of parallel resonance and two uses are shown in the accompanying diagrams.

E. M. F. Instead of being zero as is the case with a series resonant circuit, its reactance now approaches infinity as the actual ohmic resistance of the circuit becomes zero. If the parallel resonant circuit is tuned to the applied E. M. F., the reactance is maximum and if the circuit is in shunt to the head telephones, as indicated in one of the circuits, the head telephones are shunted by a path (the parallel shunt circuit) of high effective resistance to oscillations of that frequency. The reactance, or effective resistance, to oscillations of other frequencies is, however, lower and is very small at frequencies considerably greater or less than the resonant frequency. The parallel circuit, consisting of the coil and condenser in shunt to each other, therefore, provides a bypath of lower reactance for frequencies other than the resonant frequency which may be the frequency of the oscillations corresponding to the wave length it is desired to receive. When it is used across the head telephone terminals it serves to suppress all audio frequencies except that which is desired to operate the head phones. When used across the primary of an interstage amplifier transformer it may serve to suppress those radio frequencies which might otherwise cause interference. In other words, the tone trap, as the parallel resonant circuit is called, may be used to materially decrease interference, providing it is tuned to the frequency which is to be received.

If it is desired to eliminate interference from one particular station the tone trap may be connected in series instead of across the circuit which is required to respond to a different and desired frequency. In this case the reactance is maximum when the parallel circuit is tuned to resonance with the station to be eliminated. In any case the effect of the tone trap is maximum when the resistance of both the coil and the condenser is smallest and the wires used for connecting should be as short as it is possible to make them.

They Say That

Denmark's kings have been called Christian or Frederick for over 400 years.

Queen Sophia of Greece is reported to have become a convert to woman suffrage.

The Duke of York, second son of King George, has an official allowance of $50,000 a year.

King Olufwa of Lagos, on the gold coast of Africa, is king only in name, for the British own his kingdom through purchase.

The total area of King George V's domain, the British Empire, is 11,400,000 miles, with an estimated population of 410,000,000.

As a result of Prince Hirohito's visit to Europe, publication of photographs of the imperial family in newspapers and magazines will be permitted.

One of Queen Mary's chief hobbies is the collection of old Wedgwood pottery, and she has been known to pay several hundred dollars for a single specimen.

King Alfonso of Spain is an ardent "movie fan." Sometimes when a big picture is running in Madrid he may be seen waiting like an ordinary individual in the line at the box office.

And that, therefore, when he did disappear the flames obviously had nothing to do with it!

Borkins wrinkled, parchment-like cheeks went a dull, unhealthy red. He opened his mouth to speak and then drew back again. Merriton gave him a keen glance.

"Of course, how foolish of me. As you say, sir, impossible!" he stammered out, bowing backward, toward the door. "I'll be getting back to my bed again, and leave you to finish your rest undisturbed. I'm sorry to have troubled you. I'm sure you're only afraid something 'ad 'appened."

"That's all right. Good night," returned Merriton curtly, and turned the key in the lock as the door closed. He stood for a moment thinking, his eyes upon the twinkling, flickering points of light that seemed dimmer in the fast growing light. "Now why did he make that bloomer about dates, I wonder? Uncle's been gone five years—and Borkins knew it. He was here at the time, and yet why did he suggest that old wives' tale as a possible solution of the disappearance? Borkins, my lad, there's more behind those watery blue eyes of yours than men may read. Hmm! Now I wonder why the deuce he lied to me!"

Beads for Evening Dresses Popular

LONDON—The headwork craze for evening dresses in London is stronger than ever. Sequins and paillettes are dead.

Small beads of steel, bronze, glass, china and even felt adorn dresses for both day and evening wear in London today. They are, however, no longer massed together to produce heavy, chain-mail effects, but are applied singly by hand, in delicate, coquely designs. For evening wear the metal varieties, as well as plain and colored crystal, are preferred, while small white china beads are used extensively on gay-colored frocks of cotton georgette or voile.

Woollen beads trim gowns of lasha (a kind of serge) or crepe marocain, and a novel touch is added to creations in these heavier materials by adorning them with designs carried out in the new felt beads.

These consist of quaint geometrical shapes—triangles, diamonds, oblongs, of the most vivid hues—jade, yellow, cerise, Chinese blue.

Another novelty from Paris, which has made its appearance on some of the lovely cream satin gowns designed for courts, is the tiny ring of mother of pearl. Thousands of these little rings are stitched by hand to the gown, following a scalloped design and giving a fish-scale effect.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND TOMMIE KAT'S FEATHERS

Of course they weren't really Tommie Kat's feathers at all, for whoever heard of feathers growing on a pussy? That's what the Bad Bob Cat wanted to know. But, after all, as long as no one else wanted the feathers Tommie had a right to them and—

But there! Perhaps I'd better start at the beginning and tell you the story properly. Only I wanted you to know I wasn't trying to play a trick on you by speaking of a cat's feathers. Of course I know, as well as you, that cats have fur, not feathers.

However, one day, as Uncle Wiggily was starting off from his hollow stump bungalow to go look for an adventure, Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper, called to the bunny:

"Here is the jug, and, if you please, will you be so kind as to bring me some molasses when you come back?" I am going to make a ginger cake."

"Oh, fine!" cried Uncle Wiggily, for he was very fond of ginger cake. "I'll bring you the best molasses I can get at the seven and eight cent store, or maybe even at the eleven and twelve."

"Thank you," spoke Nurse Jane. So while she went into the kitchen to start the ginger cake, away hopped Uncle Wiggily.

The bunny gentleman made his way over the fields and through the woods, and soon he reached the molasses store, where he had the jug filled with the sweet, sticky stuff. On his way back home, not having had an adventure, and feeling rather disappointed, all of a sudden Uncle Wiggily heard loud shouts in some bushes not far away.

"Hum!" thought the rabbit gentleman. "That may be the Bob Cat or the Fuzzy Fox, I'd better hide for a little while until I make sure there is no danger."

Setting his jug of molasses behind a stump, Uncle Wiggily crawled into a hollow log, and there he remained hidden, while the noise grew louder. The bunny could not see out of the log, but he heard feet pattering on the dried leaves of the forest and then came silence.

"They're either waiting for me, or else they've gone away," thought the bunny. "I'll peep out and see."

Looking from the hollow log, Uncle Wiggily saw no bad animal, so forth he crawled. "But oh, dear! Where is my molasses?" he cried, as he saw no jug. "Who ever was making that noise took my molasses jug because they couldn't find me, I suppose. Oh, dear. This is too bad! No molasses! No ginger cake! What shall I do?"

Uncle Wiggily was thinking of going back to the store to get more molasses, having an idea he could carry it in his hat in place of the jug when, all at once, along came Mrs. Kat, the mother of Tommie, Jojo and Kittle Kat.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily," mewed Mrs. Kat, "have you seen my boy Tommie? I sent him to the store a long while ago, and he hasn't come home yet. I'm afraid something has happened him."

"Dear me! I hope not!" murmured the bunny. "I, myself, heard some scary noises a little while ago, and my molasses jug is gone and—"

"Oh, dear! I see what has happened!" mewed Mrs. Kat. "What has happened?" asked Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose upside down because he was so excited.

"Why some bad animal came along and picked up my Tommie!" cried Mrs. Kat. "And then they took your molasses jug. Oh, how terrible!"

"Maybe nothing has happened," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll come with you and help you look for Tommie."

"Well, if nothing has happened up to this time, something is going to happen right now!" suddenly howled a loud voice, and out from behind the bushes came the Bad Bob Cat with tassels on his ears.

"And the thing that's going to happen is that I'm going to nibble your ears, Uncle Wiggily!" he growled.

"Oh, please don't!" begged the bunny.

"Yes, I shall!" howled the Bob Cat. "Nothing shall stop me!" But just then, all of a sudden, from under a big rock came a strange object. It was a pussy cat, but how strange he looked!

"Oh, it's my Tommie Kat!" cried his mother. "But, oh, where did you get the feathers, Tommie?" For Tommie Kat was covered with hen's feathers from his head to his tail.

Cat. "A pussy with feathers! What do you think of that? If I don't watch out I may turn into a rat! I'm going to run away!" And he did, not hurting Uncle Wiggily at all.

"But, Tommie, how did you get feathers stuck on you?" asked Mrs. Kat, for when Tommie came closer she could see that the feathers were only stuck on, and weren't growing like the pussy's fur.

"The feathers stuck on me because of the molasses," said Tommie.

"Whose molasses," asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Yours," answered Tommie. "I was playing tag here in the woods a little while ago with Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the puppies. We made a lot of noise and—"

"That must have been the noise that frightened me so that I hid," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Well," went on Tommie, "when we were done playing I came out and I saw a jug of molasses. I

APPARATUS AND DEVICES
By RALPH BROWN, RADIO ENGINEER
LIGHTNING ARRESTOR HAS CLIMATIC RESISTANCE
A sturdy outdoor type of automatic lightning arrester is here shown. Material used is specified for climatic resistance and made to function under all outdoor conditions of service. It can be suspended from either end of the antenna, or from the lead—in insulator taking care that the proper safety ground is used in either case. The vacuum tube is enclosed in a porcelain moisture proof casing. The usual air gap of one-eighth of an inch is employed to form the safety gap. Several new features have been developed in the way of semi-permanent and permanent connections. The aerial wire can be soldered into tube A, or fastened into or under nut B. For hasty connection an automatic "Fahstok" clip is provided and is shown at C. The wire to the ground can be soldered into tube D or fastened under a hexagon nut at the upper end of the lower tube.

WILLING TO BE PLEASED

There is nothing in the world harder than to please anyone who is predisposed to be critical and captious.

There is nothing in the world easier than to please anyone who is disposed to be pleased.

Uphill Work

A friend of mine who is a very careful and accurate stenographer went to work for a new employer at a good salary. I know she must have done good work for him because it isn't in her to do any other kind. Yet, after a few weeks she told me she was going to leave. "I can't please him," she said. "When he took me on he was determined he wouldn't be pleased. He didn't like the person who recommended me. I found that out afterwards. And he seems to hold it against me and to be ready all the time not to be satisfied with what I do. I can't stand it. It's too much uphill work. I get good money but I can do with a little less. I'm going to leave."

When You Work Best.

She didn't leave because when she told the man how she felt he woke up to a realization of what he was losing. "And now," she told me afterwards, "he is almost too anxious to be pleased. I don't want that either—because it's hard to do one's best work when one's employer is that way. I just want a person to be willing to be pleased. That's the kind of person you work best for."

It's true, isn't it?

That's the kind of person you do your best work for and the kind of person you show your best self to.

Bad For Himself, Too.

And when anyone, employer, or husband, or wife, gets into the state of mind where he or she has a disposition not to be pleased, he (I will use the masculine pronoun both for simplicity and probability) not only makes it very unpleasant for other people but makes it less likely that he himself will get as much out of the relationship as he otherwise would.

A disposition not-to-be-pleased is a state of mind we all get into now and then. If we will recognize it as unfair and inefficient and wish to get over it, we can. And if we do, everyone will be happier, ourselves included.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Blue Eyes: The best way to handle those stray hairs that grow below the head on the back of the neck is to brush them up into the hair proper and tuck them into the net. They they are treated this way they often thin out until the natural hair line has been established.

C. H.: When using an egg with the shampoo give preference to the yolk as that part of the egg contains the sulphur. If you have much dandruff the white of the egg helps to remove it, so both parts are generally used as each has virtue and will not harm if not required. If using the whole egg beat lightly and rub into the scalp with the tips of the fingers a half hour before the shampoo. This gives the egg time to dry on the scalp absorbing all the dandruff and dirt. A liquid soap is most convenient for washing the egg off the scalp. There is no other method of shampooing that will leave the hair as silky as when it is done by first using the egg, with enough time to allow it to dry on the scalp.

W. D. K.: If crackers are made from white flour they are as fattening as white bread? Popcorn is also fattening as the process of popping does not eliminate the starch in the corn.

W. J. Y.: Peroxide and ammonia in equal parts will make a strong bleach for hair and if the hair is weak this mixture would destroy it ultimately; yet it is doubtful that this could be depended upon to destroy the roots of superfluous hair, as it would irritate the skin so badly it would have to be discontinued long before it had affected the roots. Occasionally, it has so weakened the hair that some of it has ceased to grow.

Alice S.: Since your face appears to be chapped all the time, it is possible that you have some light form of eczema. In order to clear this up quickly, it is best to consult the doctor.

Dot: A treatment for the lashes cannot be printed at this time, but I will be glad to mail this to you on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

Sara L.: The advice above also applies to you in connection with the difference ways of using henna.

Both: A girl of 13, 5 ft., 3 in., should weigh about 110 pounds, although under or overweight at such an early period in development is not to be taken seriously.

Reader: It will only take a few weeks for the natural color to return to the lashes, in the meantime you can stain them with walnut juice. This is the juice from the hulls made into a decoction and sold by most druggists. Apply to roots with a fine brush and protect the skin from the stain.

GIRL AUCTIONED OFF BY JUDGE

Not since the days when Uncle Toms and Aunt Marthas stepped off the auction block in the old New Orleans slave market and followed their new masters faithfully away has such a scene as that staged in the court of domestic relations in Chicago, been enacted. Held for a ransom to satisfy a $405 board and doctor bill incurred by her father, John Baker, now serving a term in the house of correction, 5-year-old Marie Baker was auctioned off by Judge Adams to the highest bidder. The highest bidders were Mr. and Mrs. John Kenny, wealthy residents of Rontville, Minn., who had journeyed all the way to Chicago to attend the sale. Photo shows five year old Marie Baker and her new mother.

Practical Housekeeping

PINEAPPLE

Pineapple is a very valuable fruit and one that every housekeeper relies on in an emergency since it combines with almost all kinds of fruit and is equally good when served alone, as a salad or a dessert.

Canned Pineapple—The easiest and best way to prepare pineapples is to cut them in slices, pare rind and eyes off evenly, and remove the inner core. Then leave the slices whole, if the jars have wide mouths, or cut the rings into halves or smaller pieces. To each three pounds of fruit, use one pound of sugar and two cups of water. Make syrup, of the sugar and water, then drop in prepared pineapple. Let it boil slowly until soft enough to pierce easily with a silver fork, then place the fruit in hot jar, pour the syrup over it, and seal as other fruit.

Preserved Pineapple—Make a syrup of three cups of sugar and three-fourth cups water; boil until clear, and add three cups pineapple, which has been peeled, sliced and cored. Cook 20 minutes, or until tender. Put in glass jars. When cold the jars up in thick brown paper to exclude the light, thus preserving the color of the pineapple.

Grated Pineapple—Peel pineapple, as directed above, then rub fruit through food chopper. Be sure to let juice drip into a clean bowl, add it to the fruit, sugar liberally, and can without water in order to have a very thick mixture. Can as directed for Canned Pineapple.

Pineapple Honey—Peel pineapple as directed above; cut into small slices and cover with water. Boil until tender, then strain through a fine sieve. Measure and add equal amount of sugar; boil fifteen minutes, then pour into sealed glasses or bottles. When cold, seal. This is a delicious addition to desserts and cooling drinks. When canning whole slices of pineapple there are many small pieces left over, and these can be used to make Pineapple Honey.

Pineapple Marmalade—Peel and cut pineapples into small pieces, add one cup of sugar to each six cups of fruit, and let stand over night in a cool place. Then cook until tender, rub through colander, and add one and one-half cups sugar; cook for thirty minutes, then add another one and one-half cups sugar and cook until clear and quite stiff. The juice of an orange may be added during first cooking and it will improve the flavor.

Quinces—Quince jelly and quince preserve are little known to people in some parts of our country, but they are very delicious and a glass or jar or two will be found a very welcome addition to the emergency shelf. The jelly is just tart enough to serve with meats.

Quince Jelly—Cover the quinces with cold water and cook slowly until they are soft as mush, then drain through a cloth laid over a sieve; do not press the fruit in the least. Put the juice over the fire and cook a few minutes; then add an equal amount of sugar; boil and skim and put into tumblers. When cool, seal thoroughly.

Quince Preserves—Wash, peel and cut into one-inch slices; remove the cores and cook until very tender in water. Skim out the fruit and set aside. Make a syrup of one pound of sugar (2 cups) and one-half cup water to each pound of fruit; boil syrup ten minutes, then add quinces and cook slowly half an hour, or until quite stiff.

Quince Marmalade—Core and quarter, but do not pare, cover with water and boil until tender. Rub through colander and use four cups of fruit. Stir half of sugar into quinces and boil slowly half an hour; add sugar, and boil until it stiffens like jelly when tested on saucer. Put in sterilized glasses and seal when cold.

INVENTED BY GERMAN

A new aluminum alloy has been developed which is sold under the name "silumin." It is the recent invention of a German and contains 11 to 14 per cent of silicon and 86 to 89 per cent of aluminum. It is unaffected by wet steam and resists concentrated nitric acid better than aluminum. The alloy is made from its elements in the electric furnace or directly.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

FALSE MODESTY

Last week in my papers on constipation, I went into the causes and gave you some general directions. I told you physicians of some years ago related that it was not unusual for them to have many patients who gave a history of having evacuations of the bowels but once a week and some times longer, and that apparently some of these patients were not disconcerted over their condition.

I cannot believe that a bowel movement so infrequent as that could be consummated without great agony and tearing of the anal tissues. This straining and distension would also produce hemorrhoids and fissures. When there is no bowel movement for some time there is a packing down of the feces until they form a rounded mass sometimes as large as a child's head. Intestinal specialists of today not infrequently have such cases.

I had one such case in my hospital experience. The fecal matter was so hard and of such an amount that it had to be broken up and delivered piecemeal, and the woman suffered great pain even under those conditions. Cassanova speaks in his memoirs of the mortal agony he underwent when he had a bowel movement after having had none for two weeks or so, when he was imprisoned in a dungeon with no toilet facilities; and he referred to the sufferings caused by this experience years after.

We think a daily bowel movement is of enough importance that hospital work it is customary for the nurse to ask every patient who is able to be up if they have had a bowel movement on that day, and the answer is carefully noted on the charts.

There has been a great deal of false modesty on the important functions of the bowels and kidneys. We have considerable evidence that permanent injury has been done when there has been too long a retention of urine or feces. Young boys should be taught that when they are thrown together with girls for long periods, such as at a picnic, it is kind as well as polite to leave the girls for a time. If they fail to do this, girls should be taught to have no false modesty in requesting them to do so. Women and girls more often show false modesty in seeking a lavatory and they are the greatest sufferers from this cause.

Of the two general types of constipation, the atonic and the spastic, the atonic is the commonest. The lack of tone in the majority of cases is in the anal or rectal canal and that lack of tone is usually to not having sufficient residue for the muscles to work on, and there is usually lack of tone throughout the whole muscular system. It may also be due to habitual physic taking.

Feces, contrary to the general idea, is not composed wholly of the residue of food. It consists of the excretion of the mucous membrane of the small intestines of the body refuse itself, and perhaps 50 per cent, is bacteria which normally inhabit the intestinal tract.

Occasionally constipation is of the obstructive type and is due to constriction of some of the valves or the sphincter of the anal canal. An operation of cutting the valves of the sphincter, or dilating the canal is done by the rectal specialists.

Tomorrow I will give you some of the recognized helps in constipation.

"But your father," the agent explained, "was insured years ago when there was no danger of a fellow having his head knocked off by a skidding airplane."

WHADDA MEAN, HARD LUCK?

The colonel had heard of two recent disasters in the family of his colored orderly and was surprised to find him apparently as cheerful as ever when he returned to duty after a brief furlough home.

"What, me, huh? Nossuh, Ah ain't had no hard luck."

"Why, wasn't that your brother who was killed in a railroad wreck recently and wasn't that your wife that was hurt in an automobile accident?"

"I am bringing you good health!"

Regular visits from the Ice-Man will go a long way toward keeping your family in good health.

Your health depends largely on your food, and all perishable food begins to deteriorate rapidly in any temperature warmer than 50 degrees. In such a temperature your food loses much of its nutritive value long before it actually spoils.

Only in a cold, even temperature will food retain all its health-giving qualities.

Keep your ice-box well filled every day in the year. It will pay you in better health and in the food you save from spoiling.

Harley B. Yakel to Have Realty Office

Harley B. Yakel, formerly of Champaign, Ill., has settled in Glendale and with his family is happily domiciled at 526 West Elk avenue. He intends to engage in the real estate business at Lexington and Brand in the same block with Tucker's drug store. Mr. Tucker was mayor of Champaign and is a great booster.

"But the Glendale Evening News is the dog-eared newspaper I ever laid eyes upon," said Mr. Yakel, who wrote the Chamber of Commerce here some months ago for literature about the city. "My salesman in an auctioneering business back in Champaign asked me to verify all the statements he reads in the Evening News—and I sure must tell him you tell the truth."

"The column showing Glendale statistics gives the facts to easterners who can hardly believe their eyes. Some of them suspect the Chamber of Commerce pays for that column."

Oh, yes, Mr. Yakel joined the chamber today.

Serious Rioting Ends; Inquiry Under Way

JOLIET, Ill., Aug. 8. — With four companies of state troops on duty in the area of the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern Railroad shops where serious rioting occurred yesterday, this city was quiet today. Crowds which gathered near the shops were quickly dispersed.

Yesterday the soldiers were hooted, but today they walked their posts without a word being said by those who watched.

The condition of Sheriff James A. Newkirk, who was shot twice during yesterday's battle between a mob of strike sympathizers and officers in which a railroad detective and a striker were killed, was reported as extremely serious. An investigation of the shooting was under way today by both civil and military authorities. Leaders of the strikers assured the military officers there would be no further disorders and that only peaceful picketing in pairs would be permitted.

Moyle, principal of the Glendale Union High school, spoke to the members of the association on the high school situation, and urged all the members to be present at the mass meeting to be held at the present high school building on Thursday, August 10.

Arrange Concessions
William Hunter, chairman of the committee on concessions, which also includes Dan Kelly and W. P. Potter, plans, if possible, to close all concession contracts today. This morning only one had been definitely signed up, but a number of others were to be arranged for immediately, and more were expected to be contracted for within a short time. If necessary, the final closing of concession entries will be postponed until tomorrow, but only in the event a sufficient number are not secured today.

The concession now contracted for is to be operated by the Tuesday Afternoon club. Home-cooked foods, including sandwiches, pies, cake and other tasty eatables are to be sold. Other concessions now being arranged for will handle candies, drinks, and all the attractions of a carnival, it is stated.

The committee on concessions, by arrangement with the city, is also to have charge of the dance hall. Besides the dance music, it has been arranged that the Elks' band of about thirty-five pieces will play all evening. A movement is now under way, it is announced, for the city and the merchants of Glendale to lend their support to the band and after the picnic it is expected that an active interest will be taken in financing the activities of the band, which will then give weekly public concerts.

Mr. Hunter requests all persons who wish to operate concessions at the picnic to see him today at the Glendale Paint & Paper company, 119 South Brand, so that provision for their booths may be made in plating the sections of the park which will be devoted to concessions.

DAY OF PROHIBITION FORESEEN BY THREE FORMER PRESIDENTS

Mrs. Ida Delle Mulford displaying the tiny medal which gives rise to the belief that three former presidents foresaw the coming of national prohibition.

Medal Made of Silver Would Seem to Be Proof Executives Saw Dry Spell

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7. — If side is the temperance message, dated 1834, which reads: "Being satisfied from our observations and experience, as well as from medical testimony, that ardent spirits as a drink is not only needless but hurtful and that the entire disuse of it would tend to promote the health, virtue and happiness of this community, we hereby express our conviction that should the citizens of the United States, and especially all men, discontinue entirely the use of it they not only would promote their own personal benefit, but the good of our country as well."

The medal was exhibited publicly for the first time recently by Mrs. Ida Delle Mulford at a W. C. T. U. convention in Glendale.

Can't Settle Strike For at Least Week

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—There will be no settlement of the crippling shop crafts' strike for at least a week.

Next week the strike may be adjusted—or it may spread from the six federated shopcrafts to include all the sixteen great railroad unions, becoming truly a national strike and a national crisis.

This was the situation confronting President Harding and his cabinet when they met again today to discuss the turbulent industrial situation.

If the leaders of the striking shopcrafts had decided today the issue of peace or continued war there can be little doubt that the decision would be for war.

Whether their frame of mind will be changed by Friday, the date set for a general conference of all the principal railroad unions, only Friday can determine, but the impression strongly prevailed today that President Harding's latest proposal to settle the shopcrafts' strike by having the railway labor board pass on the troublesome seniority issue is due to be turned down by the strike leaders.

Publicly, neither the spokesmen for the unions nor for the executives will make any comment on the president's proposal in advance of Friday's meeting. Privately, however, both sides condemn it.

Uses Ford Exhaust to Kill Pesky Rats

CLARKSBURG, W. Va.—William E. Starcher, local tractor train dispatcher, former member of the House of Delegates and candidate for the House again, says the only way to clear the barn or the house of rats is to use your flivver. Back it up to the barn, attach a tube to the exhaust, and turn on the engine and let her flicker. The rats, half dead from the poisonous fumes, rush out into the open and can be easily captured in a bucket, where they die.

RESUME NEGOTIATIONS
CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Resumption of negotiations tomorrow afternoon between the bituminous miners and operators in an effort to end the nationwide coal strike is expected to witness the entry into the conference of important interests from Illinois and Indiana which have heretofore held aloof from the attempts to end the tie-up.

A stout heart crushes ill luck.

Experts Considering Proposals by Premier

LONDON, Aug. 8. — Experts took over the main work of the inter-allied conference today to consider proposals made by Premier Poincare as the basis on which France is willing to grant Germany a brief moratorium on indemnity payments.

The French conditions had not been met, but it was understood that they insisted upon absolute control of all German revenues and assets with stern penalties if Germany attempted to default.

While M. Poincare was opposed in the first two sessions of the conference by the British, Italians and Belgians, it was understood that the factions have been brought closer together and that Premier Lloyd George is more than ever optimistic that the meeting will end in a satisfactory agreement rather than a deadlock.

In connection with the indemnity conference it was reported that the international committee bankers would meet in October to consider a loan for Germany. If such a loan is made, it is expected to be small and of short duration. J. P. Morgan is a member of the committee.

It is stated that the forenoon will be devoted to registering and visiting between old friends and acquaintances. A basket picnic will be held at noon. Congress of Miners Favors U. S. Strike

FRANKFORT-ON-MAINE, Germany, Aug. 8.—The congress of the International Federation of Miners today recommended that a message be sent to every national organization of miners urging them to contribute $10,000 apiece for the support of the coal-strike in the United States.

At the same time the congress decided not to cut down production of coal in Europe as a means of assisting the American strikers.

CITY HALL ANNEX IS APPROVED BY AUTHORITIES

Voters Will Be Given Chance to Decide on Issuance of $40,000 in Bonds

Adjoining this on the east side of the building will be offices for the chief of police and the lieutenant of police. The northeast corner of the first floor will be occupied by a small room for the taking of finger prints and photographs for the rogues' gallery.

Immediately behind the main entrance will be a small reception hall in front of the desk sergeant's quarters. To the left of his office will be the jail which will run along the north side of the first floor. Space is provided for five cells. There will be a corridor for prisoners and another for visitors.

Back rooms for the members of the police department will occupy the west end of the first floor. There will be a wash room, locker room and assembly room. A small receiving hospital will be located on the south side of the ground floor. This will have a private entrance from a 20-foot driveway passing under the second story from the alley to the west. There will be space for a couch and first-aid cabinet.

The women's ward of the police station will be to the east of the hospital. This will be a cell room 8 by 14 feet in size. It will contain all the modern conveniences of any jail.

The basement will be occupied by a city hall garage. This will be entered over an incline at the west side of the building. There will be space for the police automobiles and motorcycles. There will be storage rooms in the basement and room for articles found recovered by the police department. Also, there will be a smoking room for the janitor and a dark room for the development of photographs.

These plans were prepared by John P. Johnson of 1125 East Harvard street, draftsman for the engineering department. They were approved last night by the city council, Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of police, Judge F. H. Lewis, C. L. Hill, city engineer, Dr. G. Kaemling, city health officer, and others interested.

The estimated cost of the annex, including furnishings, is $40,000.

Offers Suggestions On School Situation

Editor The Evening News: At the last mass meeting held with regard to the high school problem it was decided unanimously—without debate—not to dispose of the present high school plant. This, I think, will appeal to most of the citizenry as highly laudable. It was also conceded that a high school fund be established for the welfare of the students and administratively, when the student body is not unwieldy. From 1500 to 2000 should be the maximum for best results.

It is also conceded by all that sooner or later a high school will be a necessity in the northwest section.

It is also the opinion of educators that adolescent children—that is, those of the early 'teen age—should be segregated from those of more tender age or those more developed. Now, in arriving at a proper solution we have these facts to consider. They are, so apparent, tantamount in fact to Euclidean axioms, that any action involves their consideration.

So I think the proper solution will be to use the existing plant for a junior high school and build a plant for senior students on the recently acquired tract to take care of 1500 to 2000 students with the bond issue authorized. If that is not sufficient to build an adequate plant in every respect then I suggest selling off a portion of that tract—the least desirable for school purposes, of course—and ample funds would be had to build an up-to-date and adequate plant in every respect and still have plenty of ground for all purposes.

The only further bond issue at the present time, in my estimation, should be for the acquisition of a northwest site, while still available, for a future high school. It will be economy to purchase now. Prices have materially advanced since the last discussion, and land will not get any cheaper.

It was certainly highly gratifying to note the unanimity regarding the holding of the present high school buildings and grounds. It would, in my estimation, be nothing short of criminal to obliterate that oasis in the heart of town. It is the only breathing space we are likely to retain, with the rapid march of progress. And, while on the subject, I wonder if it would not be possible to make a semi-public park of the grounds—at any rate to the extent of an occasional band concert?

Protesting Petition.
The protesting petition, which was filed about ten days ago, follows:

"We, the undersigned property owners on San Fernando boulevard, City of Glendale, representing the frontage inserted after our names, request of your honorable body consideration of the following facts:

"The lighting system ordered installed on San Fernando boulevard, according to statements made by the contracting firm, is to cost a much larger sum than we were made to believe this improvement would cost.

"There apparently has been no competitive bidding for the installation of this system.

"In view of these facts, we, therefore, petition your honorable body to re-open this proposition for further consideration that iron posts also be given more consideration and that by all means opportunity for competitive bids be given before the contract is awarded.

Bavarian Secession Problem Discussed

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—A supreme effort will be made here tomorrow to settle the Bavarian secession problem. Count Von Praeger told President Ebert that Premier Loecherer of Bavaria; Minister of Interior Schuyver and Minister of Justice Guertner will arrive from Munich tomorrow to consult with officials of the Berlin government. It is believed that an amicable agreement will be reached by which Bavaria will remain in the confederation of German states. The chief cause of discussion was the defense of the republic act, which was palpably aimed at Bavarian royalty.
